

Marine Therapy: History and latest research

Francisco Coll, Laboratoires Quinton

When we talk about Marine Therapy, we have to remember that our body is water, 75%, more or less like the earth. But nowadays, we know that this water is seawater.

Life is still produced in the ocean today as Craig Venter demonstrated. This was the hypothesis of René Quinton. Life appeared in the ocean and the cell try to maintain its origin.

René Quinton was very famous when I died. He was compared to Darwin and to Pasteur. He and his followers, as Doctor Jean Jarricot, saved a generation of babies in France called Baby's Quinton.

There is an Original Protocol of René Quinton to produce the seawater. The point where seawater is harvested is very important. The phase between phytoplankton and zooplankton in the ocean food chain is the most important point of the protocol. Here, the elements inside the seawater are transformed from inorganic form to organic form for the rest of the food chain. This seawater can not be heated, so to make it sterilized a 0,22 micrafiltration is used.

Linus Pauling said that all diseases can be explained by a mineral imbalance and the seawater contains 78 elements totally bioavailable and balanced.

The effect of these elements on our immune system was explained by Doctor José Miguel Sempere in three articles. Isotonic seawater modules the immune system.

Doctor Juan Colado and Doctor Roberto Lacava show us that Isotonic Seawater can be used for elderly people for a better physical and mental status.
